

JAMES M. COX FOR PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT RUNNING MATE

Roosevelt of New York, assistant secretary of the navy. While the crowd was demonstrating its relapse from the usual routine, the leaders arranged an impromptu rally on Tuesday to campaign for the second place in the presidential election and meet again pre-arranged to meet the ticket.

The band wagon movement of the afternoon Monday during the interval of the fight made appeal- ing. Throughout the evening, the votes stood the same, and the band wagon movement of the afternoon Monday during the interval of the fight made appeal- ing. ### FOR VICE PRESIDENT

Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, assistant secretary of the navy and relative of the president who bore that name, was chosen by the Democratic national convention Tuesday after- noon as its candidate for vice president and running mate for Governor Cox.

The band wagon movement for Mr. Roosevelt got under way very quickly soon after the convention assembled and although other candidates—among them Governor Stewart of Montana, and Major General L. D. Tyson of Tennessee, were presented—there was no doubt of Mr. Roosevelt's selection from the first.

It was exactly 3:15 o'clock when the convention with loud cheers, nomi- nated Mr. Roosevelt with a loud shout and the first party cry of "Cox and Roosevelt" rang out.

The convention wanted to hear Roosevelt and Chairman Robinson in- stant presented Secretary Daniels who made a speech.

At 3:29 o'clock the big show was all over and the convention adjourned for the last time.

Mr. Roosevelt sprang into political prominence in 1910 when he was drafted by the Democrats of the 28th New York senatorial district. He was re-elected in 1912, but resigned his seat in 1913, to accept the appoint- ment as Assistant Secretary of the Navy. His most famous exploit in the State Senate was his leadership of the insurgents who opposed the election of William F. Sheehan to the United States Senate. After three months' deadlock, James A. O'Gor- man, was elected with Mr. Roosevelt's concurrence.

Mr. Roosevelt was born in Hyde Park, January 30, 1882. He is a dis- tant relative of Col. Theodore Roose- velt on his father's side and the Astor family on his mother's side. He at- tended the Groton school and was graduated from Harvard in 1904 and the Columbia law school in 1907, being admitted to the New York bar the same year.

Mr. Roosevelt married Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, niece of the late Theodore Roosevelt, and daughter of Eliot Roosevelt, in 1905. They have five children.

STAFF POET GOES BUG-HOUSE

The Mosquito
There is music that is sweeter
Than the song of the "muskeeter".
Yet we lie awake to listen to her
high soprano note,
Till after lots of fussing—
And perhaps a little cursing—
Her voice is stilled forever as we grab
her by the throat.

—o—

The Fly
He wakes us in the morning with a
tickle on the nose,
And when we go to breakfast his
flyship also goes.
He helps himself to coffee and
dances on our plate,
And buzzes his defiance in the very
face of Fate—
We slap him where he isn't, and he laughs in ghoulish glee,
As he roosts upon the butter, just
as happy as can be.
E'en in death he still pursues us,
for we learn that when he died,
In our second cup of coffee he'd committed suicide!

—o—

The Chigger
If the gay and festive chigger
Were just a little bigger—
Say something near the size of a pigeon or a hen—
And wishing not to slight you,
Should grab a hold and bite you—
Well, the chances are that (maybe) you'd be an angel then.

RAN LIKE SCARED WOLF

Harry Wolfe, police plainclothes- man is always ready to help the needy Wednesday night as he was stand- ing at the door leading to the desk sergeant's office an old man tottered into the police station and approached Wolfe.

"I need help," he addressed Wolfe. "What can I do for you, old top?"

C. OF C. CAMPAIGN FOR MEMBERS ON

the past year, and the report had the effect of bringing an ovation from the members present, so satisfactory was the progress reported.

Following Mr. Davis, President H. G. Bennett, of the Normal, spoke a few minutes to express his apprecia- tion of the aid the association has been to the Normal school.

Next Sam Stone had the floor for ten minutes giving reasons for the proposed change in name. After his remarks, a motion to make the change carried unanimously.

Forrest Johnson, the newest mem- ber of the board of directors, then had something to say about the trials and tribulations of the directors.

Last, came the address of Hon. Mark Saxon, of McAlester, on com- munity building, and those present listened to one of the best twenty- minute town-boosting talks yet to be turned loose on a Durant audience.

After Mr. Saxon, an opportunity was given any who desired, to express themselves, and several did.

Following the free-for-all discus- sion the meeting adjourned en masse to another portion of the lawn where a real old fashioned Dutch lunch was prepared where they might feast with no limit save each man's capacity.

Wolfe asked him, placing a hand on the old man's shoulder and looking straight into his eyes.

"I've got a bad case of small pox," the man replied.

Wolfe was found several hours later.—Oklahoman.

It is rather unusual for an officer to run because he is afraid he will catch something, in fact there are some officers of whom it is said that they can't catch anybody or anything, not even the smallpox. Evidently Wolfe didn't consider himself in that class.

USE JUDGMENT IN CHOOSING

Lewis Paullin is a candidate to succeed himself as County Judge of Bryan county, subject to the demo- cratic primary.

Judge Paullin is serving his second term as such officer and it was with reluctance that he entered the race for a third term. A series of events over which he had no control brought about this and he is now in to win, and asks the support of the democrats of the county upon the sole question of his fitness for the place.

None have been so bold or so un- fair as to bring a single charge of incompetence or unfairness against him. All are agreed that he has made a most righteous and fair judge, all agree that his office has been con- ducted to the best interests of all the people, all are agreed that he is am- ple as a judge, and that we could not hope to get a better judge by a change.

Then why change?

If you had a chance to hire a farm hand who was known to be a good one and who had experience; would you turn him down and get a lad who never saw a breast yoke or who never harnessed a team, just because the first lad had had that job for four years? You would not.

If a merchant or banker had a chance to get an experienced clerk, one who knew all the ins and outs of the business, one who had been tried and found efficient and trustworthy; would he turn him down for an in- experienced youth whose metal had never been proven and whose worth had yet to be demonstrated? He would not.

The same course of reasoning should be applied to county affairs, to affairs of government; and when we do, we shall always have efficient and economical government.

That is all there is to this race for county judge. Both of Judge Paul- lin's opponents are worthy young men of high character; but neither of them are experienced in law; neither of them has had much busi- ness in the courts. Each would have to learn the law and the procedure after he came into office—at the ex- pense of the county.

So in this day of reconstruction, of high expenses, why not use your hard headed good judgment in voting as well as you do in ordinary affairs of life and choose the man for the office who is best fitted already by reason of experience and middle aged good judgment to be your county judge.

Judge Paullin will appreciate any- thing you do for him in this race. He is not physically able to get out to see all the people. He has his judicial duties to perform; and the crutch it not a speedy means of loco- motion.

The Judge does not feel unkindly toward those who have decided to vote otherwise. He appreciates already that so far as his own case is con- cerned, the people of the county have been very good to him, and he does not ask for support other than free- will and hearty. He is a most af- fable gentleman. If you have busi- ness in his court, the poorest will receive the same very careful ten- tion and courteous consideration as the richest. The office is the peo- ple's and the Judge conducts it with that idea in view.

Vote for Lewis Paullin—The man who has given satisfaction—The man of experience—For County Judge on August third.
